

CITY INDEX'S 'CITY TRADING' CELEBRATES ITS SECOND ANNIVERSARY BEING VOTED BEST MOBILE TRADING APPLICATION BY READERS OF SHARES MAGAZINE

14 November 2011, UK – City Index, a global leader in Spread Betting, Contracts for Difference (CFDs) and margined foreign exchange, has won a fourth award for its mobile trading application, City Trading, since its launch in October 2009.

Shares Magazine readers voted City Index's app, available for iPhone™, Android, BlackBerry and Java devices, as the industry's best, beating off competition from industry competitors.

City Index launched City Trading™ in 2009, when it was the industry's first ever live trading app. Since then, it has been updated to incorporate a powerful live charting package with multiple technical indicators and streaming news. The app provides City Index clients with full and secure access to their trading accounts wherever they are, whenever they want.

Stats from City Index underline the rapidly growing popularity of mobile dealing amongst its clients. Since the launch of City Trading two years ago, the percentage of client trades being placed through their mobile devices has increased from under 2 percent to over 24 percent, indicating a shift in trend away from generic PC platforms to more innovative, mobile trading technologies.

Joshua Raymond, Chief Market Strategist at City Index, said: "We're very pleased to be recognised by the readers of Shares Magazine as offering the best mobile trading packages in the industry. The award reinforces our commitment to innovative and easy-to-use mobile dealing technologies, which our clients have really embraced over the last two years. Mobile trading is the future of our industry and we're delighted to be recognised as the leaders in the space by readers of Shares."
